Hi There,

I'm excited for you! Because this special report is designed to reveal the real, honest-to-goodness, no bull, opportunity to cruise free.

This is not some pie-in-the-sky deal. Real people all over the world are cruising free by using little known onboard enrichment programs established by many cruise lines.

It's an exciting opportunity because many cruise lines have what are known as enrichment programs which are onboard "edutainment" programs that literally provide those that do the edutainment with the opportunity to cruise free.

In this special report you'll learn what enrichment programs are, which cruise lines have them, what cruise lines look for in people participating in these programs, and how you can plug-in and exploit this opportunity to get free cruises for yourself and a travel companion.

Ready?

Let's get started...

Very truly yours,

Enrichment Programs: What They Are and Why They Exist

Generally speaking, enrichment programs are onboard activities, events, lectures and seminars designed to enrich or add value to the cruise experience of passengers. That is, these programs are there to make the cruise experience better in some way.

Cruise lines have enrichment programs because they are very interested in keeping their passengers happy. This is easier to accomplish while the ship is in port because obviously passengers have lots of activities and lots of choices to have fun when they're in port. They can get off the ship and take the various shore excursions and

Daniel's ideas and techniques were so easy to understand and readily applicable that I was able to get booked with a cruise line before I even finished the material. I couldn't wait to get started, so I sent out my information the moment I discovered how to do it.

Of the nine packets I sent, three companies contacted me right away. I chose my favorite and booked three international cruises within a week.

Daniel's enthusiasm is contagious—I applied his style, passed it right along in my information and had no trouble seeing results. Once you understand the process, there's nothing holding you back. See you in the Greek Isles!

spend their time exactly the way that they want to in these destinations. Alternatively, they can stay onboard and take advantage of the amenities in an un-crowded, un-hurried environment.

However, it is more difficult to keep passengers happy while at sea because they obviously can't access shore-side activities and the ship is necessarily more occupied (or even crowded during high season). Passengers are, for all intents and purposes, captives. Consequently, the cruise lines will offer all sorts of really neat activities and edutainment programs on sea days. In so doing, they are trying to give passengers as many different choices and alternatives as they can. In the eyes of the cruise line (based on onboard passenger surveys) more choices equals more passenger satisfaction.

And here's the kicker: The great thing about that is that many of these activities are staffed by, guess who? Other passengers! You, me and other otherwise average people with something interesting or entertaining to say or do. The trick is breaking in. I explain exactly how to in my Speak On Cruise Ships program.

The Opportunity For You

Let me tell you more about this very attractive deal.

Benefit #1: Free Cruise

In exchange for furnishing three or four one-hour classes during a seven-day cruise, onboard enrichment people get a free cruise.

Can you imagine?

You give up three to four hours of your time during a seven-day cruise and you get a free cruise. How's that for a productive use of your time.

Benefit #2: Traveling Companion Cruises Free, Too

Now what's even more remarkable about this deal, and I just absolutely love this part of it, is it also includes the enrichment lecturer getting to bring a traveling companion along who, get this, also cruises free.

So you could bring along a traveling companion with you sharing the same cabin and that person pays nothing and has no work obligations. They don't have to spend the three or four hours during that seven days and it's just a remarkable deal. In fact, I started doing this in 2002 and have taken two to three cruises every year bringing along friends and family as my traveling companions. And let me tell you something, when you're able to take people on free cruises you become a VERY popular family member or friend.

"FYI my first cruise experience was awesome. I lectured twice and took my brother on the trip of a lifetime. Thanks for writing your book."

Benefit #3: Passenger Perks

Here's another important benefit. You actually cruise as a passenger, not a crewmember. So you'll get every other passenger perk too. That means all the fine dining, all the entertainment, the maid service, the cabin steward service, everything that every other passenger gets, you will also get because you are traveling as a passenger.

Benefit #4: Every Port Day Free &

Only One-Hour Per Day When Ship Is At Sea

Okay. The best part is that enrichment programs are usually scheduled on sea days. Like I said earlier cruise lines do not need as much help entertaining passengers when the ship is in port because all the passengers by and large are off having fun at the these destinations. Consequently, your only obligation to give a 1-hour presentation is on sea days. This means you are free to get off and go have fun on the port days just like everyone else.

The Top 8 Existing Opportunities For Anyone to Get Free Cruises

What follows is a brief list of the opportunities that are available for those who know how-to seize the opportunity. What's more, most cruise lines use at least one (and many times all) of the following list on every single ship, on every single itinerary, 24/7/365. 1. ENRICHMENT LECTURER

You could be an enrichment lecturer. This is how I started. This is basically a speaker that does a presentation on a variety of different topics. These topics include general interest and destination driven type presentations.

General interest topics refer to those popular topics you'll see on a non-fiction bestseller list. For example, diet, exercise, how-to, current events, business and money-making are all somewhere in top 20 bestsellers as of the day I writing this special report. And these topics are not likely to change into the future.

On the other hand, destination-driven topics must somehow relate to a destination of the particular itinerary you are cruising. For example topics that relate to the history, geography, wildlife, folklore, and language etcetera of the ports you'll visit. This is certainly not an exclusive list. However, destination-driven programs must always add value to the experience of visiting that particular destination. By way of example, one of my destination driven lectures is Cerveza Fria: 60 Minutes to All the Vacation Spanish You'll Ever Need. If you are a non-Spanish speaker and are visiting a Spanish-speaking port then this presentation may be quite valuable to you.

Being an enrichment lecturer is only one possibility. Now I want to tell you about the opportunity to lead a class as a...

2. ARTS AND CRAFTS LEADER

That's right. You can get on board and be an arts and crafts leader. The crafts range from simple projects to multi-class high-art like watercolor painting and work with charcoal sketching. The cool thing is that everyone can learn to do a simple craft which can be taught in an onboard class. So this type of onboard activity lends itself quite well to someone who is really not an arts and crafts person normally. Of course, if you enjoy doing crafts this is a no-brainer, easy-to-do, activity. What's more if you are apprehensive to speak in public, teaching an arts and crafts class might be right up you alley.

Why?

Because when doing an arts and crafts project your audience will be focused on the craft, not you, the person teaching it. But the opportunities don't end there for example you and a traveling companion can cruise free as a ...

3. ONBOARD DANCE INSTRUCTOR

If you have happy feet, know the dances and can teach others how-to shake their booties then you may want to take advantage of the opportunity to be an onboard dance instructor. All sorts of popular and destination specific dances are taught. Think learning to Samba before visiting Rio. The list continues...

4. BRIDGE PLAYERS

If you like playing bridge, belong to the various bridge playing associations then there are ways to cruise free by spending some time every sea day in the game room playing bridge. Can you believe that? A free cruise to play cards! And yet there's more...

5. GENTLEMAN HOSTS

If you are a more mature male, single with absolutely impeccable manners the cruise lines have programs to bring folks like you on board to dance with and escort the unescorted ladies on dance nights and other events onboard during the cruise.

The payoff?

A free cruise or if you are interested in extended engagements, you may even get paid plus get free room and board. But there is still more. Are you computer savvy? ...

6. COMPUTER INSTRUCTOR

If you are computer literate cruise lines have all kinds of need to teach classes on basic computing. Lots of people, particularly older folks, want to learn how to use computers and don't have a clue on how to do it. There is a huge demand for this type of class onboard. Can you teach basic computing?

But hang on; I have more opportunities to tell you about for example...

7. DIGITAL PHOTOGRAPHY INSTRUCTOR

Much akin to teaching basic computing is teaching people how to use the capabilities of their digital camera to take and produce better quality images. Most people now have digital cameras but comparatively few know how-to use them to the full extent of their capabilities.

Can you teach a few of the tricks to produce better digital photographs?

Yes?

Then you could be a hot onboard resource. And it still doesn't end there. In fact you can cruise free if you can teach a class or present a program about...

8. THE NEXT HOTTEST POPULAR THING

I want you to think outside the box. If you are an expert in the next hottest thing then in all likelihood you could cruise free teaching whatever that happens to be. That's how I started.

My first onboard class was in 2002 when I taught something that was really starting to take off: eBay. My class was a primer on how to get started selling stuff on eBay. At the time there was huge buzz about eBay and many people were interested but apprehensive. Once I figured out how-to approach and sell the cruise lines my eBay enrichment idea they jumped at the chance.

I hope you're getting the picture on how you can started utilizing this great travel opportunity.

About Daniel Hall

Daniel Hall is just like you. Until he accidentally learned about cruise ship enrichment programs he had no idea that you could cruise free by giving onboard presentations or leading activities.

Fortunately, he learned the secrets of being approved by the cruise lines to cruise free. In fact, he was taking so many free cruises that friends and colleagues began to ask how he was able to do it.

Because he was spending so much time explaining the process he finally decided to write it down. Eventually, that effort would become the critically acclaimed program "Speak on Cruise Ships"

In addition to cruise speaking Daniel has a wide array of interests, talents and achievements. For example, he holds degrees and licenses in both law and nursing, having graduated from Texas Tech University, School of Law and the University of Texas at El Paso, College of Nursing.

Currently, Daniel earns his living practicing law, speaking and running multiple online businesses which include:
